Topic #1: "AAP Classification"

Description: In 2017, the American Academy of Periodontology and the European Federation of Periodontology came together to establish guidelines for the classification of periodontal diseases. This course discusses the outcomes of that meeting and examines the concepts of staging, grading, and distribution to classify a patient's periodontal health, periodontal disease, or peri-implant disease. (2 hrs long, Category 1)

Objectives:

- Participants will be able to discuss the core concepts of the AAP updated classification of periodontal disease.
- By reviewing case studies and radiographs, clinicians will be able to independently assess a patient's periodontal health and properly stage, grade, and distribute for diagnosis.
- The clinician will be able to recommend necessary treatment for the maintenance of the patient's periodontal health or management of the patient's periodontal disease.
